A New York Confidence Man at the Head of the Syndicate.

Wisconsin Foraged by This Organized Gang of Thieves.

PERCIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. MILWAUKER, Wis., Aug. 17.-A burglars andicate or trust now exists, according to high police authorities. In fact there are said to be about a dozen of these syndicates and the next move will be to consolidate them. The facts leaked out through the arrest of a noted criminal a few days ago. In his day he was one of the most noted bank ronbers of the East, and his picture adorns nearly every rogues' gallery in the country and occupies a full page in Inspector Byrnes's book on noted

This man now belongs to that class which is designated in police circles as "gone."

For some time the police of this city have had an idea that an organization of thieves have been working the town. The variety of work done puzzled them, however, as it extended from safe-cracking to sneak-thleving. When this man was arrested, the officials decided to pump him. An attempt was made to make him believe the police had a case against him, but he so stoutly maintained that he had done no "work" for a year that this was given up. It was decided to send him up to the Hous of Correction for a year or so on general prinetnies. When he learned of this programme he broke down, and said he was already dying of consumption. A bargain was made, and he told of the "burglars' syndicate" with which he was connected. A little investigation convinced the officers of the truthfulness of his story, and they are now at work on the strength of the information furnished.

The first trust was formed in New York Chy by a confidence man nearly a year ago. It was his theory that burgiars, safe breakers, bank sneakes, pickpockets, baircony men and the whole coterie were like day laborers—they needed management. With a shrewd manager at their head many of their stupid bunders could be prevented, and by systematic work the chances of detection could be greatly cut down.

He got about twenty-five men together, and so conducted matters that very tew knew each other. With a capital stock of $5,000 he mapped out a route, ent scouts or travelling lookouts shead and furnished transportation mapped out a route, each scouts or travelling lookouts shead and furnished transportation for his men.

The tour was very successful and only one man was held, and he finally escaped by the power of money turnished by the syndicate.

This summer half a dozen such gangs have worked different territory. That Wisomain has been thus foraged within the last two months is he longer a matter of doubt.

The method was for men to jump into a town or city at hight, do their work and then nove on to the next stand. In large cities these artists played a week's engagement instead of a one-night stand.

The continual shifting of the men from one town or state to another makes their capture very difficult.

very difficult.

Und r the old system burglars and thieves always showed a tendency to stay where they made a good haul, and keep on working until the police located and captured them. Under the direction of the Nanelsonic confidence haul this has all been changed, and from a burglar's standpoint the syndicate system has been a great success.

Mrs. Corbett was aroused by her little daughter crying.

"Mama, mama, Pm choking."
The parents tumbled out of bed, grabbed their children and made for the yard.
Corbett nammered on the doors, awakening the other tenants, and a panic ensued. Men. women and children tumbled downstairs in their night clothes, screaming with fear.
The firsmen found fire burning briskly in a wood-house in the back celiar. An old straw mattress and some discarded furniture helped to feed the blaze. The fiames were quickly subdued. The tenants believe that the fire was started by tramps, who are in the habit of sleeping in the cellar.

WARD'S MYSTERIOUS DROWNING.

Did He Jump Overboard Through

Fear of a Wronged Husband? The mystery of the jumping overboard in Hell Gate, Aug. 11, from an excursion boat by Louis Ward, of 80 South Second street Villiamsburg, is only partially cleared up by the finding of his body off Stapleton, S. I. Whether he intended suicide when he tumped into the water is a question that will probably never be cleared up.

Ward, it is said, had deserted his wife and White Ward and Mrs. Gill were waitzing ingolar they were told of Gill's presence, and only few moments thereafter Ward leaped from the deex and was seen no more. It is conjectured by some that he sprang into the water through fear of being shot by Gill or of being arrested and locked up, while others believe that he suddenly determined to commit suicide. Ward's body was identified yesterday by his brother, and an inquest will probably be

With appropriate ceremonies the first Peo-ple's Bath-House was opened this afternoon.

The new bath-house is in Centre Market place, just east of Centre street, between Broome and Grand streets.

It is a pretty building, of light-colored brick with terra-cotta trimmings of the early Italian style; has a frontage of twenty-seven feet on Centre Market place and a depth of sixty-five feet. It is two stories high, the upper floor being the home of the superintendent and his family.

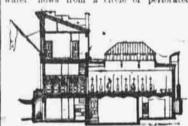

THE PROPER'S BATH-HOUSE.

On the ground floor are two reception for women, the other for men. They are furnished in hard wood, and are ery pretty. The main bathroom is at the rear, and is divided into eighteen small bathms of metal, each very neat. These small athrooms are lighted by a skylight in the daytime and by gas at night.

Here the occupants of the tenement-houses, where there are usually no bathrooms, may enjoy a bath for five cents each, the likele being to pay for sosp and towels.

The walls of the little bathroom are of enamelled brick, the floors of iron and cement. Those for grown people are furnished with spray shower baths, so arranged that the water flows from a circle of perforated wonth property.

curiain for the protection of the clothing of the bathers.

There are three set tubs in which the chil-dren may frolic, and there are seven addi-tional baths in the basement. Here, too, are the botter and engine, and the laundry where the towels are washed.

An artesian well will furnish 50,000 gallons of water a day, and each bather is entitled to twenty minutes in the bath.

The bath-house will be kept opened from 6 A. M. to 9 r. M. from May to November, and from 8 A. M. to 8 r. M. during the Winter months, so that 500 persons can bathe each day it they like.

This is only the first of a series of baths to be erected by the Association, and there is already talk of erecting one on the east side with money from the Baron Hirach fund.
